The Last Emperor of China

Twilight of the Forbidden City

Paul French

New York Times bestselling author Paul French tells the story of the last Emperor of China and the final two years during which he and his court occupied Peking's secretive Forbidden City.

Contributor Bio

Paul French lived and worked in China for many years. His book Midnight in Peking was a New York Times Bestseller while City of Devils: A Shanghai Noir received much praise with The Economist writing, "... in Mr French the city has its champion storyteller." His most recent book, Her Lotus Year: China, the Roaring Twenties and the Making of Wallis Simpson, was described by the New York Times Book Review as "beautifully told through meticulous historical research."

Bytes and Bullets

Global Rivalries, Private Tech, and the New Shape of Modern Warfare

Steve Feldstein

Quotes

"The placid reveries of these last few decades are about to be shattered by a new era of global conflict—one defined by a profusion of technologies even their creators don't fully understand. Steve Feldstein is among the guides I trust most in this uncertain landscape. He's the rare analyst with the breadth of knowledge, variety of experience, and clarity of vision to help the rest of us navigate the furious change that awaits."

An Inconvenient Woman

The Extraordinary Life of Lillian Smith, the Southerner Who Defied Jim Crow America

Keri Leigh Merritt

Quotes

"A fascinating exploration of the life of the extraordinary writer Lillian Smith, one of the southern white progressives who stood at the forefront of the struggle for racial justice and civil liberties. A beautiful contribution to American history." —Julian Zelizer, author of Burning Down the House, New York Times 100 Notable Books of 2020

"At once a startling new history of the civil rights movement and a long overdue rescuing of a personal story of an unsung heroine that too few know, Keri Leigh Merritt's Inconvenient Woman is a beautiful must read." —Heather Ann Thompson, Pulitzer Prize-winning author of *Blood in the Water: the Attica Prison Uprising of 1971 and its Legacy

"Keri Leigh Merritt has gifted us with an extraordinary biography of Lillian Smith, a trailblazing white Southern, artist, writer, and racial justice advocate. Timely, insightful, and necessary reading in our present age." —Peniel E. Joseph, author of *The Sword and the Shield: the Revolutionary Lives of Malcolm X and Martin Luther King Jr.

"A vital act of historical recovery. Merritt restores Smith to her rightful place in the American story—not as an exception, but as a truth-teller who arrived early and paid dearly for her clarity." —Yohuru Williams, author of *Rethinking the Black Freedom Movement

"A beautifully written biography of southern writer Lillian Smith, who critiqued the inconsistencies and inequalities of the Jim Crow South. Merritt also peels back the stigma of queerness in Lillian's own lifetime to offer readers a nuanced portrait of Smith's relationship with her long-term partner who sustained her in life, and her life's work." —Karen L. Cox, author of *No Common Ground: Confederate Monuments and the Ongoing Fight for Racial Justice

How to Resist Guilt

On What's Holding Women Back

Mona Chollet, Emily Boyce

Summary

Many of us battle a relentless inner critic, which whispers to us that we are unworthy or inadequate, whether in our role as parents, employees, or citizens of an unjust world. In How to Resist Guilt acclaimed feminist writer Mona Chollet asks why we so often succumb to these feelings and settle for a second-rate life lived under constant pressure, instead of fighting back, having the courage to say no, protecting our boundaries and living the life that we deserve.

Drawing widely on popular culture and literature to expose this "enemy within," Chollet encourages us to reject the fear of not being good enough, to liberate ourselves from overwhelming duty and to enjoy the profound simplicity of just being. Delving into the insidious ways guilt is wielded as a tool by those with power and privilege, particularly against marginalized communities including women and sexual and racial minorities, she helps us to identify the source of the critical voice, question its validity, and ultimately silence it.

Bohemians on the Breadline

The Radical Women Artists of Roosevelt's New Deal

Lauren Arrington

Quotes

"A moving, powerful and beautifully written account of a fascinating historical moment, through the eyes of a brilliant array of women artists whose works speaks as much to our time as their own." —Francesca Wade, author of *Gertrude Stein: An Afterlife

"An essential, history-shifting story of women artists working in the United States during the New Deal. Arrington's agile prose and deep archival research (No FBI file goes unturned) reveals the conflicting but necessary role of art in national crisis and personal identity—and feels freshly relevant today. Long after I'd finished reading, many of its details lingered like lanterns strung across the shadows of history."—Prudence Peiffer, author of *The Slip: The New York City Street That Changed American Art Forever

"Beautifully researched and conceived, Golden Harvest is a timely, compelling reminder of how the arts flourished and sustained a nation when championed by public leadership and investment."—Natalie Dykstra, author of *Chasing Beauty: The Life of Isabella Stewart Gardner
